

ABSTRACT

A method of generating keys for object(s) in a Web Services arrangement, includes determining if an object has a defined first key and if the object has a defined first key, providing that defined first key for the object and if the object does not have a defined first key, providing a second key for the object.